Current Macon County Sheriff's Department Chief Deputy Stacy Gann will be taking over the reins of the Lafayette Police Department beginning November 19, after City Council members voted to hire Gann as the City's new police chief last Thursday night, November 8.

Henry Behr has been serving as the department's interim police chief since the resignation of former chief Ray Amalfitano on August 31, 2012.

City of Lafayette Mayor Richard Driver stated that there were 11 applicants vying for the Chief position, and that list was narrowed down to five candidates. Each of the five candidates, including Gann, were interviewed, and it was recommended by both the Police Committee and the Personnel Committee that Gann be offered the position.

Gann had these words to say after council members approved the motion to hire him as Chief of Police, Level X:

"I just want to thank you for the opportunity. I don't take the job lightly. I will work hard to make you proud of the department and the employees of the department."
