The plant was recognized for most improved in quality, safety and productivity from 2010 to 2011 over 19 other contenders in part due to having no accidents or injuries since October of 2011.

The second award, the Midwest Logistics Excellence Award, recognized the Macon County facility and the two other plants in the region for their efficiency and productivity in the production field.

"This was a very cool experience for me," Dexter remarked. "I can't begin to express the pride I felt for our team. The strides they've made from 2010 to 2011 have been phenomenal. We have an amazing team here that's building something quite incredible. It was quite an honor to represent our team and what they've accomplished."
