

Macon Ambulance Involved in Sumner Crash

Written by Debbie Gregory
Tuesday, May 29, 2012

A silver Ford F150 truck collided with a Macon County ambulance in the northern section of Sumner County, sending the driver of the pickup to an area hospital, according to the Tennessee Highway Patrol.

The accident occurred around 2:30 p.m. with Trooper William Head responding to the scene at Highway 31E and Rock Bridge Road in Castalian Springs. Authorities stated that the ambulance was not running emergency traffic lights when the crash occurred and Macon County emergency personnel were on board.

No more information was available at press time, due to the holiday weekend.